

We believe that the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy Law protections. The Indiana Telephone Privacy Law has improved my home life by 100 %. We are not getting all those calls from annoying telemarketing companies, that call us all hours of the day and night. Everytime we would answer the phone all it was was the telemarketing companies. We would receive at least 5-6 calls per day. The most would be around 8-10 calls. With this Indiana Privacy Law, I am happy to say that we receive no calls at all. This law has certainly benefitted my household and I am sure I speak for the many other households out there. This law should stay in effect as it stands now. To change this law would be a huge mistake.
